Cunard Liner Carmania Comes to Rescue of Doomed Ship at Noon.

STEAMSHIPS FIGHT GALE
FOR HOURS TO REACH IT
Captain Barr Tries to Get Line to Burning Vessel in Vain.

Fishguard, Oct. 11.—Fire in a raging storm in mid-Atlantic on Thursday destroyed the liner Voyurno on her voyage from Rotterdam to New York, with a loss of either 120 or 235 of her passengers and crew.

Ten other liners called by wireless to the rescue were standing by, unable to avert the tragedy owing to the mountainous seas.

Again the wireless played a leading part in the drama. By its means word was sent through the heralism of those who responded to the call the lives of 521 of those on board the Voyurno were saved.

Officials of the Uranium line declared this morning that those on board included 24 cabin and 540 steerage passengers, with a crew of 88 making a total of 627. The wireless dispatch received from the Carmania said that 521 had been saved and 226 had lost their lives. This makes a total of 757, or just 100 more than the number given by the company.

Checking from all available sources would indicate that an error in the wireless transmission of the figures has been made, and that the lower total, 126, is correct.

London, Oct. 11.—The Uranium line steamer Voyurno from Rotterdam for New York, with several hundred passengers aboard, is reported abandoned at sea. Two hundred passengers reported lost.

Fishguard, Eng., Oct. 11.—Wireless messages from the steamer Carmania report that the steamer Voyurno with several hundred passengers aboard from Rotterdam for New York was abandoned at sea.

The steamer responded to the wireless calls for help, and fought for hours during a gale to save the passengers and crew from the burning steamer, which was abandoned. Occupants of the six lifeboats were thrown into the sea when the boats were smashed against the steamer's side, and probably drowned.

Support by way of Liverpool, is that 235 of the passengers and crew of the Voyurno are missing.

The wireless from the Carmania said that the Voyurno caught fire in mid-Atlantic, and the flames raged on.

TURKEY MAKES PURCHASE OF
SUPER-DREADNOUGHT

Vizma, Oct. 11.—It is reported here that Turkey has purchased from Brazil the super-dreadnought Rio de Janeiro, which has just been completed by Armstrong, Whitworth and Company, at Newcastle-on-Tyne. The Rio de Janeiro is a 25,000-ton vessel and displaces 27,000 tons.

3,000 CATTLE CROSS BORDER.

Welland, Ont., Oct. 11.—Three thousand head of cattle, which have been held in pasturage between Welland, Niagara Falls and Bridgeport, and removal of the tariff, which gives free admittance to the American market, are now being sent across the border. These cattle were brought from all parts of Ontario.

SUSPECT OF MOOSE JAW SHOOTING UNDER ARREST

Harry Bascum, the Victim, in Dangerous Condition—May Die.

Moose Jaw, Oct. 11.—Harry Bascum, who was shot in River Street Thursday night by an unknown adversary, is fighting for his life in a city hospital ward. All that surgeons say who operated on him at an early hour today is that he has a fighting chance of recovery. The wound in the intestines two miles east of that town. He was held and is now being brought to the city. His description does not quite tally with the official one here, but it does with that submitted by certain people who saw the shooting and who think the police description a wrong one.

OPPOSITION CHIEF UNDER THE KNIFE

E. Michener Undergoes Operation for Appendicitis Which Disposes Four Concretions in Appendix.

Mr. E. Michener, member for Red Deer and leader of the Opposition in the Alberta legislature, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Royal Alexandra hospital on Friday afternoon. The operation was performed by Dr. Allen, of Edmonton, Dr. Elbow of Calgary and Dr. Stanley of High River, members of the legislature and personal friends of Mr. Michener. The operation was successful, and his condition this morning is quite normal. Mrs. Michener came up from Red Deer last evening, having received by telegraph on route of her husband's condition.

In Mr. Michener's appendix were found four concretions, which accounted for at least three previous attacks. One of the concretions contained grape seeds.

They may contend that the vermiform appendix really had a function once upon a time," said Dr. Stanley, "but they are welcome to miss just now."

"Mine went the way of all flesh long ago," said Dr. Elbow.

When they learned that the opposition leader had gone to the operating table at four o'clock, members on both sides of the house kept the telephones busy until the welcome announcement was made that Mr. Michener had recovered from the effects of anaesthesia.

"I was very glad to hear that Mr. Michener withstood the shock of the operation," said Premier Sifton. "It is unfortunate for the opposition that they should be deprived of the presence of their leader at this time, and I sincerely hope that he will soon be able to resume his public duties. I know what it is to lose a friend and especially during the stress of a session, and I trust that Mr. Michener's condition will not cause further anxiety to all of us as it has for the past 48 hours."

MRS. PANKHURST WILL "SHOW UP" POOR WEAK MAN

Will Enter States by Stealth to Test Efficiency of Male Officials.

MAKES NO SECRECY OF
HER BOLD INTENTIONS
Has Heard She Will Be Stopped
by Immigration Officials and Will Enter Disguised.

New York, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Pankhurst will not leave for this country on the steamer La Provence today, as had been arranged, as she has heard she is likely to be detained by the immigration authorities here, according to a cable message received here yesterday. She will take another steamer and sail under an assumed name, to test the efficiency of male government. Will the cablegram was sent from Paris to Miss Jean Wickham, Mrs. Pankhurst's advance representative in this country. As given out here, the message read:

"Understand U. S. immigration officials will detain me, questioning my right of entrance. Have changed plans. Will not sail on La Provence, but will take another steamer under an assumed name to test the efficiency of male government. Will leave you day before arrival. In confidence. (Signed) 'Emmeline Pankhurst'."

It was announced from women's suffrage headquarters last night that Mrs. O. H. Belmont will be prepared to furnish a bond of $100,000 for Mrs. Pankhurst, if necessary, on the militant leader's arrival here.

Emmeline Gets Whole Part.
New York, Oct. 11.—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National Women Suffrage association, has cancelled her engagement to speak at the meeting arranged to welcome Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant English leader, here next week. Dr. Shaw said her unwillingness to speak was due to the fact that while Mrs. Pankhurst had been guaranteed $1,000 and part of the gate receipts, she (Dr. Shaw) had been unwilling to procure a guarantee of $1,500 for her cause.

BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED DURING SEPT. INCREASE

Many New Structures
Last Week's Record Beaten by $104,000.

The building permits issued by the building inspector this week are almost double the record of last week. It is surprising the large number of houses that are being erected this fall. While the private dwellings take the lead, yet there are also many more stores and apartments, warehouses and other large buildings projected. During the week the permits for valued $209,000, as compared with $165,975, the record for the previous week.

A comparative statement showing the relative amounts represented on both sides of the river is as follows:

North Side

Saturday 1,700 8,120
Sunday 174 1,250
Tuesday 4,300 2,400
Wednesday 10,000 22,200

Friday 10,900 1,500

JAPAN DEMANDS REMOVAL OF CHINESE GEN. HSUN

Head of Troops at Nanking Must Go as Result of Killing Japanese.

Tokio, Oct. 11.—The foreign office today issued a statement concerning the negotiations with China arising from the killing of Japanese subjects at Nanking in which it says that one condition imposed by Japan upon China remains unfulfilled. The statement adds that the time has not arrived to discuss its nature but that China has given assurance that it will be complied with.

It is understood that this condition calls for the dismissal of General Chang Huan, head of the Chinese government troops at Nanking; and that while China has agreed eventually to comply she has postponed action for the time being on account of the inability of the central government to enforce his dismissal at the present time if it were decreed.

PLANK PITCHING, ATHLETICS WIN DECIDING GAME

Taking Four Games Out of Five, Philadelphia Proves Decisively it has the Best Ball Team in the World. Mathewson Powerless to Stop Quartette of Mighty Sluggers—Final Score of Deciding Game is 3 to 1.

Even the mighty Mathewson was unable to stop the terrible onslaught of the best ball team in the world, and as a result the Philadelphia American league team defeated the New York Giants again today, gaining a victory which makes them the world's champions at baseball.

The series which ended with today's game gave the Athletics a decisive victory of four games out of five, and as a result the Philadelphia American league team defeated the New York Giants again today, gaining a victory which makes them the world's champions at baseball.

Connie Mack's team fairly played rings around McGraw's National league champions, and beat them in every department of the game.

Perhaps today's game more than any other demonstrated the superiority of the Philadelphia team. With Christy Mathewson, the world's greatest pitcher, in the box, they hammered out a good lead in the score and then proceeded to back up that marvel of south-paws, Eddie Plank, in a way which left no doubt as to their being a grand aggregation of ball players.

With a 19-inning battle only two days past, in which he blanked the Giants for nine successive innings, he went into the box today and, old man that he is, pitched the game of his career, letting the mighty Giants down with only two hits. It was wonderful pitching, and will make him the hero of the Queker City for years to come. The support accorded him by his team was nearly responsible for his absolutely air-tight pitching, although had there not been an error in the support he would have doubtless gotten away with a shutout, for the only run New York made was in the sixth off a hit and an error. The brilliant fielding which marked nearly every minute the Athletics spent in the field over-balanced this error however. Had it not been for a double play in the sixth the Giants would doubtless have scored another run.

Murphy, Collins, Oldring and Baker, that famous quartette of sluggers, got to Mathewson early in the game, and by clean hitting brought in the runs that cinched the championship. After the third inning Matty settled down and held the Athletics scoreless, but it was too late; the damage had been done.

Polo Grounds, N.Y., Oct. 11.—The New York Giants stood in their last line of entrenchments today, and with their "Big Gun" Christy Mathewson, wheeled into action, faced the storming attack of the Philadelphia Athletics, needed but one more victorious charge to make them the world's champions of 1913. With all his pitching arsenal yanked by the Athletics' cannonading, Manager McGraw was forced to send his lone pitching star, Mathewson, to the firing line with only two days rest. The National league champions have won only one game in the series.

Thirty-five thousand or more persons, undismayed by the horrid task of the Giants, came out to the Polo Grounds to witness the fight. The gloomy weather kept the Philadelphia crowd down to a small number, but those enthusiastic enough, found the Athletics' bench and never missed an opportunity to cheer their team.

With heavy clouds drifting in from seaward there was a constant fear that rain would end the struggle. Canvas stretched the inner playing field from the night's downpour, and the groundkeepers had the diamond in shape for smart fielding.

The Giants were the first on the field for a long balling practice. McGraw had told them in the club house that if they expected to make a stand today they would have to give Mathewson support with their bats. McGraw and Mathewson were the last to come up on the field and the crowd accorded them a welcome, for their was not a man present who did not realize that it was up to Mathewson to stop the Athletics.

The Philadelphia team marched across the field in a body and began to warm up on the side lines by tossing the ball back and forth to each other. One o'clock found nearly every seat in the unswept stands and bleachers occupied, and the crowd was still jamming the turnstiles at the entrance.

After the game Manager McGraw hurried over to the Athletics' bench and congratulated Connie Mack.

The Philadelphia rosters swarmed down upon the diamond, and hero Plank across the field on their shoulders. Twenty-five thousand or more persons, undismayed by the horrid task of the Giants, came out to the Polo Grounds to witness the fight.

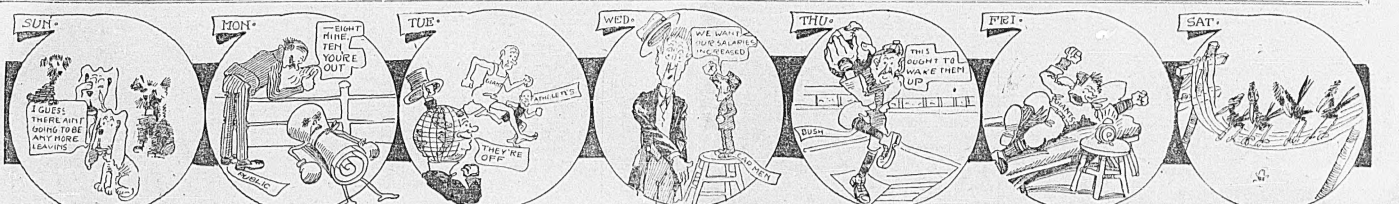

Winthrop, Oct. 11.—Grasping a rope as he was falling through the air after a scaffolding 140 feet high had given way, Chief Deery saved his life, while his fellow worker, Joe Zena, was less fortunate and was instantly killed. The men were working as iron workers on a water tower at the agricultural buildings yesterday, when suddenly the scaffolding gave way, sending both men into space 140 feet above the earth. Deery managed to get hold of the hanging rope and hung on. He saw his companion falling below him, grasping at every possible thing but without it was up to Deery to save him. The last barrier to uninterrupted passage between the Pacific to the Atlantic at Panama has been blown away and the dream of centuries is about to be realized. What remains to be done is like sweeping up the shavings. In a very few months the mercantile marine of the world will be passing from ocean to ocean and the Pacific coast will have become a new front door to the North American continent.

Someone has said that had the Pilgrim Fathers landed in Burrard Inlet instead of Plymouth Rock the New England states would still be wilderness. From this time forward the west coast of the Pacific would be a convenient landing place, and it needs no prophetic vision to see the overflow of Europe crowding in by the Strait of Doorway until the valleys of the Pacific slope teem with humanity, making vineyards on its sunny hillsides, fruitful and beautiful enough to put Italy to shame, turning its water powers to account to serve the industrial cities with which its valleys will be peopled, garnering the harvest of its forests and fisheries and delving into its mountain sides for the riches of its mines. Ten million people are computed to total the population living west of the Rocky summit between San Diego and Cape Nome. When the old fort down at the foot of Eighth street was established by the pioneers of the Hudson Bay and Edmonton first became a stopping place on the overland highway to the Pacific there were more people in Ireland than upon the North American continent and more people in Dublin than in New York. It needs no great imagination to see fifty million people on the Pacific slope within the lifetime of many already of middle age, and of these, ten or twenty millions north of the Canadian line in the territory toward which the natural highway from the plains and the east leads through Edmonton.

With the completion of this great work at Panama, North America becomes an island. The centre of inaccessibility moves to the geographical centre of the continent. Where scarcely one full lifetime ago the white race occupied little more than a fringe along the Atlantic coast, the Caucasian is now about to find himself facing inward from both sides of the continent and the cities contiguous to the west coast are about to become of the same rank of importance as distributing centres as those contiguous to the east. Edmonton, closer to tidewater, the natural commercial capital of a more expansive and more fertile territory than that which has built both Minneapolis and Winnipeg, is about to take a position of more importance than either—or than both. To the oil country of the north, from which must be drawn the fuel which will fire the ships of the Pacific, the highway leads through Edmonton. On the world-girdling short route via the Hudson bay Edmonton is the only city the globe-trotter will see, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax lying 500 to 1,000 miles to the southward of this line of travel. From the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic ocean, when the Waterways has been stretched to the continent's northern rim, the highway will pass this way, as it did in the pre-historic days when the mound-builders of a thousand years ago travelled to Coronation golf to work its copper mines only now being rediscovered. Grain shipments originating 400 miles to the east and 500 miles to the north will converge upon Edmonton to be spigoted through to Burrard Inlet, and upon the daily clearances of this city the markets of the world will hinge.

The spark with which President Wilson unloosed the shot, which blew away the Gamboa dyke opened a new gate to prosperity for Edmonton and inaugurated a new era in which the dreams of Cortez, Alexander Fraser, De Lesseps, Roosevelt, Goethels and the pioneers of Edmonton are to be realized.

In the discussion of the Waterways question in the legislature the opposition has never tired of relishing the threadbare insinuation that in the flotation of the bonds "$7,400,000 dropped clean out of sight." By this time the opposition should have become ashamed to continue this shallow attempt to cast suspicion.

A thousand times already it has been shown that the Waterways bonds were floated in the same manner that every other bond issue is handled in the New York or London market, through the medium of underwriters. It is quite true that the house of Morgan, who underwrote the Waterways issue, took them at par, as the conservatives claim they did, and that the same bonds were shortly after sold in London at 100 above par; but does that imply that there was anything wrong?

The city of Edmonton is just now closing up a $11,000,000 flotation underwritten by a London firm at 95 at the very time that Edmonton bonds were bid and selling in the very same market at 100. Applying the opposition's method of insinuation to this instance, it would mean that $550,000 of the money of the city of Edmonton "had dropped clean out of sight."

Would anyone have the audacity to say that the mayor and commissioners and the Edmonton city council had been so stupid as to allow the underwriters' wholesale price for the entire issue of bonds and the market price at which retail lots of Edmonton bonds were being sold?

Yet this is exactly the nature of the circumstances upon which the opposition is basing their attack. They are basing it on a theory somewhere got away with something in connection with the Waterways flotation.

A LOVELY EPITAPH
FOR MR. BORDEN.

"The Ogilvie Milling Company and other Canadian milling interests," says the dispatch, "together with the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, are reported to be against any such reciprocal action by the Canadian government as would permit Canadian grain to enter the United States duty free."

The milling interests and the transportation monopoly are against any reciprocal arrangement by the Canadian government (meaning the abolition of the duty) which will let Canadian wheat into the United States duty free.

Is that not plain? The Ogilvies, with the United States' market closed against the farmers have him cooped in behind the 49th parallel where relieved of competition with the Minneapolis millers, they can buy his wheat at a lower price than they would have to pay if the Minneapolis mill-were in the market bidding against them. The Canadian transportation monopoly, with the tariff wall standing as a barrier against shipment southward, enjoy the exclusive franchise of the eastward haul at a higher freight rate than they would be able to collect were the United States roads allowed to bid against them for business. So the Ogilvies and the other Canadian milling interests and the Canadian Pacific and the other Canadian railway interests are opposed to the abolition of the duty which would give the Canadian grain grower a chance to escape their monopoly.

With the proposition set out as plainly as this the Canadian farmer will not require the services of an actuary to figure out where he gets off at on this tariff arrangement, nor even to make a fairly reasonable guess as to where the money came from which so lavishly financed the anti-reciprocity fight in the last dominion election.

The contravailing duty is going to make a lovely epitaph for Mr. Borden.

The announcement that two or three local companies are to go into the fur farming business recalls the important part that the fur trade has played and is still playing in the development of this city and illustrates the changes that are taking place in the conditions of the country of which this city is the centre.

It was in search of furs that the early explorers were tempted farther and farther afield, and it was the sight of the furs from northwestern Canada that led the formation of the Hudson Bay Company and other fur-trading companies.

While the demands for furs continue to grow, the areas from which they can be gathered are ever diminishing as the pressure of population upon the waste places of the earth increases. To grow furs by means of animals kept in captivity has a fascinating sound and after many trials and disappointments the industry has been brought so far to the point that it is now a major industry of the Canadian industry. The northern grown furs are the best in the world and there is plenty of northern land upon which furbearers can be kept and bred.

One touch of appendicitis makes us all akin. Here's hoping that Mr. Michener may speedily recover and long retain his good health.

We object to the proposed elimination of Maxim silencers, as suggested in the game law amendments. They should be retained and applied to long winded members of the opposition.

If Janse Bros., Boomer and Hughes, Mr. Bennett's clients, really want to build the Waterway for $16,000 a mile why do they not place their offer before J. D. McArthur? Doubtless he would be able to give them some encouragement.

"Contributed."

In view of the hope that are being taken to arrange for a fitting observance of the centenary of peace between the English speaking nations, it is worth while to pause and consider the spirit that underlies, or should underlie, the occasion. 'Vain will be the observance, if the hands play, the efforts of the most eloquent orators will be wasted in the desert air; unless we have a lively consciousness and a sincere desire to promote the sentiment, that is a fitting contemplation of the occasion.' Little thought is given to the fact that the British Empire and the American republic are in fundamental one vast commonwealth. Little thought is given to the fact that the English and the Americans are knit together by the ties of a common language, by the ties of a common history, by the ties of a common culture. The same basic principles are raised on the same 'substructure'; the keynote of this demonstration should be the desire to draw these ties closer, to make the bond of union stronger. The spirit that should be fostered on this day, when there will be perfected between the United States and Great Britain an Anglo-American Alliance, should be the spirit that should be fostered on the day, when there will be proclaimed to the world that these two great branches of the English speaking races are united for the preservation of peace and tranquillity. The spirit that should be fostered on this day, when there will be proclaimed to the world that these two great branches of the English speaking races are united for the preservation of peace and tranquillity, should be the spirit that should be fostered on the day, when there will be proclaimed to the world that these two great branches of the English speaking races are united for the preservation of peace and tranquillity. At any match an alliance would perpetually establish the supremacy of Anglo-Saxon government and Anglo-Saxon institutions. No matter whether we live under the stars and stripes or the Union Jack, we must remember that they are not a natural growth; but were established through long centuries of struggle, the seed from which sprang such nations as the United States and England. The Anglo-Saxon patriots who sacrificed their lives that they might transmit to their children and descendants the priceless heritage of freedom. All English-speaking countries, the American republics, the British Empire, the nations that have taken the fruits of that struggle, the English-speaking races should unite to preserve these liberties unimpaired.

The natural impulses of the races so essentially identical in ideal and aspirations would inevitably be directed to the same ends. The Anglo-Saxon would inevitably be the few. For the sake of building up a monopoly in trade, for the sake of restricted markets, for the sake of preventing competition in business the real interests of the people must be sacrificed. The Anglo-Saxon would be the few, and the rest of the world the many. The encouraging of home industry, the masses must continue to suffer the hardships, entailed by the necessity of keeping the country in a perpetual war-footing.

Anglo-Saxon patriots, who have sacrificed their lives for the sake of establishing and maintain their battleships have been built and standing armies supported and the body of the people have at all times been sacrificed to the interests of the few. The Anglo-Saxon patriots

Canadians played an important part in the victory won by British arms on Lake Champlain 137 years ago today, June 21, 1776. This was the first battle of the war, the previous June, and Sir Guy Carleton, the Governor of Canada, led an army to the lake. He had no boats, so there was no road; in either shore, no Carleton was not about the construction of an armed vessel. The first vessel, the Confiance, a 30-gun frigate, was built in the summer of 1776 and was made commodore of the American fleet on the lake, and proceeded to the battle of the 21st of June, 1776. The Confiance was commanded, with Edward Prince as his commodore, and on the morning of October 11th, gained an advantageous position near Arnold's vessels. A severe battle ensued, in which Arnold's flagship, the Royal Savage, was delight ended the colic. In the darkness Arnold escaped, but he was overtaken three days later, and fled into the woods after burning nearly all of his vessels. The American loss was 90 men, the British less than half that number. On the 14th Governor Carleton took possession of Crown Point, but soon abandoned it and returned to Canada.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Today marks an important anniversary for the newspaper, for it was on the eleventh of October in the year 1861 that the first real newspaper in the world was published.

This pioneer Journal was the progenitor of some 35,000 newspapers in the English language. Of these, about 29,000 are now published in the United States and Great Britain, over a thousand each in Canada and Australia, and the remainder in the rest of the world. As the newspapers of the world total only about 60,000, more than half of them are published in the United States.

From farm boy and printer's devil to the governorship of the Panama Canal Zone, and to the presidency of the United States, Mr. Taft has had a career that optimizes the career of Richard L. Sixtieth Anniversary of Morris-Bullfinch Boat.

Sixty years ago today the little village of Boston Corners, N.Y., near the Massachusetts and Connecticut border, was the scene of a regatta.

It was the regatta of the Morris-Bullfinch Boat Club, which was organized in 1896. The club has since grown to be one of the largest and most successful in the world. It has won many championships and has been a member of the International Rowing Federation since 1924.

The club's headquarters are at the Morris-Bullfinch Boat Club House, which is located on the shore of the Morris-Bullfinch Lake. The house is a large, two-story building with a prominent chimney. It is surrounded by a beautiful garden and a large parking lot.

The club's fleet of boats is one of the largest in the world. It includes many different types of boats, including rowing boats, canoeing boats, and sailing boats. The club also has a large number of rowers and canoeists who compete in various regattas throughout the year.

The club's success is due to the dedication and hard work of its members. They have won many championships and have been a member of the International Rowing Federation since 1924. Irish-Keene Sullivan fought their memorable battle. To the boxing bugs of today the names of Morrissey and Keene Sullivan mean little, but they, with John C. Heenan and Tom Liver, were the great American fighters of that day. Like all of the purillistic contests of that era, the fight was under London prize ring rules and with bare fists. Morrissey was the victor after a bloody contest of 37 rounds.

world's champion. Heenan was an aggressive fighter, with a punch like a mule's kick, and he had all the best of it in his early days. He was a boxer all right, but the police interfered. Heenan, loudly giving expression to the opinion that the "dom Brits" were trying to rob him of victory, bowled over Sayers in the sixth round. Heenan was undoubtedly from the ring and refused to fight again. While in England Heman married another woman, Frances Randolph, who was also noted as a poet and writer, and who moved in the best social and literary circles of London. He had three children by the second wife, one of whom died of the influenza and got a divorce, when Heman married another woman, Mary Ann, who was an American fighter of this period was Joe Cohn, who won the American championship just before the outbreak of the war. GOVERNMENT HOUSEInterestingly Described by Miss Jean Forsythe, Society Edi-

Perfect in Harmony and Design.

This week I had the pleasure of making a call upon Mrs. Bulyea and having a petting view of Government House. After a few minutes conversation with His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, Mrs. Bulyea volunteered to show me the house and we strolled through the big hall, commenting upon the fine furniture, splendid hangings and comfortable "chesterfields," with plenty of cushions to give the homelike air of hospitality which should always envelope a hall, and then went to the lovely pale Wedgwood blue drawing-room. The color is well chosen, as the room in daylight is lighted by large windows facing the west and with a pretty view of the river—soft blue velvet rugs, and exquisite pale blue lacquered furniture, comfortable row chairs, large sofas, with downy cushions in shades of pink and blue, and one or two of black. Just a suspicion of black to bring out the color of the room. An old-world air reveals itself in the mirror hung high above the fireplace, the gilded leather screen with scenes a la Watteau painted upon it, and the gold-lacquered corner cabinets. Leaving this room we came into the ante-room, which is furnished in pink, a very decided contrast, but which make a wonderful color scheme when the two rooms are thrown together.

The broad hall and stairways are carpeted with a dark crimson velvet carpet and lead to another large hall upstairs furnished in the same style, with row chairs and occasional tables. This hall leads directly to Mrs. Bulyea's sanctum, a den with a homelike room, furnished in chintz, a fireplace and pretty view from the long bay window making it most attractive. Here Mrs. Bulyea will move her personal belongings and will receive and entertain her "irlings." The state apartment lead also from this main hall, and are so constructed that they can be shut off completely from the other rooms, making them quite a private suite.

The sleeping rooms are large and airy with bathrooms adjoining each. Mrs. Bulyea's bedroom is done in English chintz rose and grey rose velvet rugs, mahogany furniture, and a large bay window. The other bedrooms are in green, with light maple furniture, in rose with mahogany, and in grey and blue with white enamel.

There are plenty of rooms to accommodate a large number of guests. Mrs. Bulyea's essential arrangement, as in the old house it was almost an impossibility to put up the Royal parties when they came from Ottawa on periodical visits.

The dining room to which I was introduced last, is quite a formal room done in dark blue with panels of walnut almost reaching to the ceiling, where it is finished with a dark paper in a conventional pattern of crimson flowers. There is the massive table, additional and chairs of walnut upholstered in dark blue leather, rich silver candelabra and other necessary silver to adorn the sideboard. Everything in the room suggests solidity.

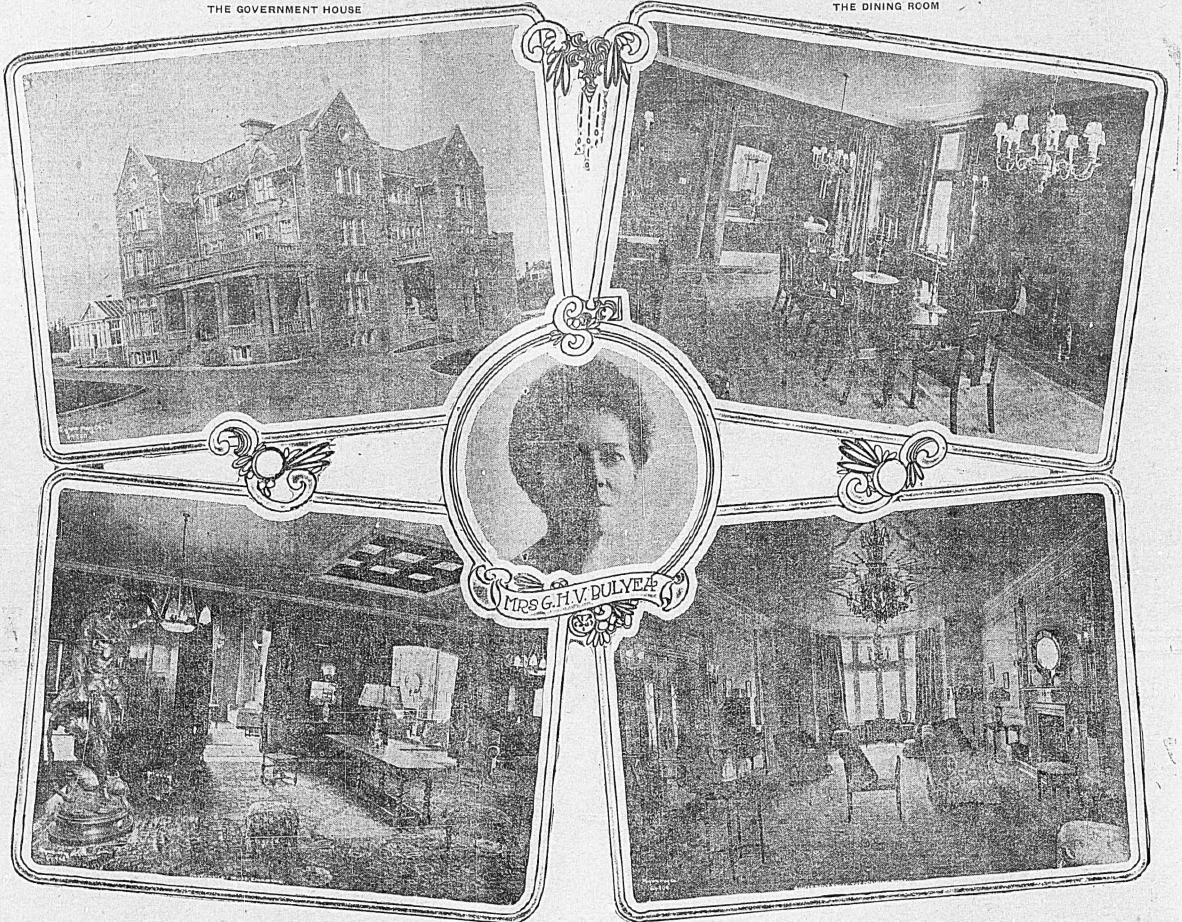

When the inspection of the house was ended, Mrs. Bulyea, who has a most delightful way of most telling things, gave a charming account of her summer holiday in Honolulu, and particularly interesting was her story of a visit she paid to the Deposed Queen of Hawaii, Queen Liliuokalani, who is now an old woman of more than 70 years, and who lives the life of just an "ordinary lady," occasionally receiving a few friends, as on this occasion, a distinguished stranger.

Mrs. Bulyea loves photography, and showed me some of her "snapshots" taken in this glorious island, and one beautiful photograph of a Hawaiian boy which is a great favorite of hers. Mrs. Bulyea has endeavored herself to Edmonton by her gracious manner as the chatelaine of government house, and by the great interest she has always evinced in any movement for bettering the condition of the poor or improving of our city. She is the honorary president of the Women's Canadian club of Edmonton, the Edmonton Local Council of Women, and an interested worker in the Y.W.C.A., as well as in the Victorian Order of Nurses.

As a hostess, she always has a win-

THE DINING ROOM

THE MAIN HALL

THE DRAWING ROOM

After a construction period covering about 18 months, the Government House is now complete, the first reception to members of the house, deputy ministers and other government officials having been held this week.

The new Government House is situated west of the Great River, on a tract of land overlooking the winding Saskatchewan river and covering about 28 acres. The main entrance to the grounds is just west of the Great River bridge on Athabasca avenue. The Government House is approached by winding driveways that have been artistically laid out and paved up to the east of the house where is located the port cochere.

"The Government House is built of Calgary sandstone in rough face. There is an imposing chimney on the south side with a spacious balcony overhanging the porch. Another large balcony has been laid out over the porch coehere from which point, looking toward the east and south, a gorgeous panoramic view may be had of the city on both sides of the Saskatchewan river.

The exterior of the building is architecturally somewhat severe but has good lines, and is based largely on the English country house. On the south and to the west is a large conservatory. The building was designed provision was made for the addition of a large hall room, extending along the west side and connecting with the conservatory.

The entrance to the house is through the vestibule which leads into a large spacious hall, seen in the accompanying group. An anti-vestibule leads off to the right, where spacious ladies and gentlemen's cloak rooms are located. These have been provided for the use of guests when in attendance at large receptions and other Government House functions.

The main hall runs east and west and is of excellent proportions. It is "Jacobean" in design and also in furnishings. The library is entered from the main hall on the left side, adjoining which is the secretary's room. The music room and drawing room, which will be seen in the group, also lead out on this side of the house.

On the right of the hall is located the magnificent dining room, out of which will eventually be the entrance into the proposed ball room. The entrance to the conservatory is also from this side of the building. A billiard room containing two billiard tables and a smoking or lounge room are laid out in the basement. The kitchen, servants' quarters are laid out in the basement and entirely apart from the lounge and smoking rooms.

The two upper floors of the Government House contain chiefly the bedrooms. Mrs. Bulyea's boudoir is nicely situated on the south side of the building and opening on to the large balcony from which a magnificent view may be had of the city and the Saskatchewan river.

During the summer a large amount of work has been done toward beautifying the grounds by way of tree planting, grading, paving and fencing. However, the grounds will not look at their best until at least another season's work has been put on them. The location is ideal and lends itself to the making of the most artistic grounds in the city of Edmonton.

The building was designed by H. P. Blakey, the provincial architect, and the work has been carried to completion by the construction branch of the public works department. It reflects no little credit on those who have had in charge its planning and construction.

SONS OF ENGLAND WHIST DRIVE.
The splendid success of the south side Sons of England's whist drive held last evening afforded ample proof of the popularity which this form of evening entertainment enjoys. There was an exceptionally large crowd and the original number of tables provided by the committee had to be considerably augmented before a start could be made, and even then, a number of late-comers had to be relegated to the ranks of onlookers. The prizes, six in number, gave an added zest to the games, and the final counting of the scores indicated some remarkably close finishes. The ladies' first prize, a dozen Rogers' silver tea spoons, was won by Mrs. Cooper, of the north side, with the top score of 120, while second place was warmly contested for by Mrs. Marton Huntbach and Miss Magie Cable, whose scores were 117. Miss Cable proved the greater adept at cutting the cards, which made her the possessor of a dainty china teapot. The consolation prize for the ladies was won by Mrs. Mat. Graham, Mrs. H. Partridge proved that she knew more about what than any of the other gentlemen by carrying off a fountain pen with the highest score of 125. Mr. John Shields and Mr. Charles Bainbridge had to cut the cards to decide who should take the second prize of a vacuum bottle, while Mr. John Price and Mr. E. S. Renson ran a neck and neck race for the "booby," and so ended the list. Light refreshments were then served by that energetic and popular member, Mr. "Tommy" Floyd, and his very of lady assistants. God Save the King ended the proceedings.

Mrs. Ernest Beaufort, of Fifth avenue, south side, received on Friday afternoon for the first time this season, and she had a large number of callers. The tea table was prettily decorated with scarlet geraniums.

Mrs. Miller poured tea and Miss Margaret Miller assisted.

Mrs. Beaufort was given in a deep blue satin with chiffon draperies.

The engagement is announced of Miss Irene Marguerite Keane, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Keane, of Brantford, Ontario, and niece of the late Rev. Dr. Keane, of the diocese of Toronto, and Mr. Hugo, Alfred Harper, second son of Mr. H. B. Harper, M.A. (Oxon) and Mrs. Harper, and nephew of the late General Sir Henry Harcourt, C.B. The marriage will take place early in the new year, very quietly, owing to the illness of Dr. Keane, who has not yet recovered from the carriage accident in which he was injured some time ago.

Lemon Apple Filling

Put three-fourths cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of flour in a saucepan and stir until thoroughly mixed; add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of cold water, one egg slightly beaten; a few grains of salt and one apple pared and grated. Place on range and bring to boiling point while stirring constantly. Let boil two minutes, still stirring. Cool before spreading.

Politeness opens many doors, but they are usually self-closing.

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty-Seekers

W. C. D. says: "My face is freckled the year round, putting it is sure to help much, is there anything that will really take off these freckles?" Here you find the treatment recommended to Miss L. F. I've known this to remove very obstinate freckles.

First, wash. "What should I do for deep lines under my eyes and across my forehead?" Such lines, and all wrinkles, are best obliterated by bathing affected portions in a good standard and reliable lotion, which strengthens and draws in the relaxed tissues. Here is a reliable formula: 1 oz. powdered salicylic acid, 1 pt. witch hazel, and 1 pt. of the lotion. Use as directed.

Miss L. F.: The untidy robes, as well as the pimples, can be removed by using ordinary mercerized wax. Apply with warm water. Soap you'll have a complexion trouble. One once surface for most conditions.—Wagon's head.

Daily Fashion Talk's

BY MAY MANTON

A SIMPLE GOWN OF FOULARD.

SILK is used for simple gowns as often as cotton these days and such gowns are among the most satisfactory that a woman can own. This illustration shows one of this kind that will be found excellent for many occasions. In this case, the material is fould in a light gray, figured with black and the material, the color and the simple lines of the model combine to make a most attractive costume. Charmeuse would be equally good for the gown.

In any color that is becoming. French serge or one of the silk and wool mixtures could be used, too, if something little warmer than the silk is desirable. Washable materials are especially lovely this season and there are many among them that could be used for this gown with perfect success. The overlapping closings of both the blouse and the skirt are smart. The blouse shows the long shoulder line that is so much used this season and a very pretty rolled over collar that leaves the neck slightly open. There is a separate chemise that can be used if liked. Long sleeves continue to be exceedingly smart but, if the shorter length is preferred, these can be cut off. The skirt is in four pieces. The plaided portions that are allowed under the overlapping points of the front and back can be cut off if they are not wanted. Here the skirt is joined to the blouse at the high waist line but it can be cut off at the natural line. These models are especially well suited to each other, but either can be combined with any other that may be preferred.

For the medium size, the blouse will require 2 1/2 yards of material 27, 34, 36 or 42 inches wide, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100, 102, 104, 106, 108, 110, 112, 114, 116, 118, 120, 122, 124, 126, 128, 130, 132, 134, 136, 138, 140, 142, 144, 146, 148, 150, 152, 154, 156, 158, 160, 162, 164, 166, 168, 170, 172, 174, 176, 178, 180, 182, 184, 186, 188, 190, 192, 194, 196, 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, 210, 212, 214, 216, 218, 220, 222, 224, 226, 228, 230, 232, 234, 236, 238, 240, 242, 244, 246, 248, 250, 252, 254, 256, 258, 260, 262, 264, 266, 268, 270, 272, 274, 276, 278, 280, 282, 284, 286, 288, 290, 292, 294, 296, 298, 300, 302, 304, 306, 308, 310, 312, 314, 316, 318, 320, 322, 324, 326, 328, 330, 332, 334, 336, 338, 340, 342, 344, 346, 348, 350, 352, 354, 356, 358, 360, 362, 364, 366, 368, 370, 372, 374, 376, 378, 380, 382, 384, 386, 388, 390, 392, 394, 396, 398, 400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412, 414, 416, 418, 420, 422, 424, 426, 428, 430, 432, 434, 436, 438, 440, 442, 444, 446, 448, 450, 452, 454, 456, 458, 460, 462, 464, 466, 468, 470, 472, 474, 476, 478, 480, 482, 484, 486, 488, 490, 492, 494, 496, 498, 500, 502, 504, 506, 508, 510, 512, 514, 516, 518, 520, 522, 524, 526, 528, 530, 532, 534, 536, 538, 540, 542, 544, 546, 548, 550, 552, 554, 556, 558, 560, 562, 564, 566, 568, 570, 572, 574, 576, 578, 580, 582, 584, 586, 588, 590, 592, 594, 596, 598, 600, 602, 604, 606, 608, 610, 612, 614, 616, 618, 620, 622, 624, 626, 628, 630, 632, 634, 636, 638, 640, 642, 644, 646, 648, 650, 652, 654, 656, 658, 660, 662, 664, 666, 668, 670, 672, 674, 676, 678, 680, 682, 684, 686, 688, 690, 692, 694, 696, 698, 700, 702, 704, 706, 708, 710, 712, 714, 716, 718, 720, 722, 724, 726, 728, 730, 732, 734, 736, 738, 740, 742, 744, 746, 748, 750, 752, 754, 756, 758, 760, 762, 764, 766, 768, 770, 772, 774, 776, 778, 780, 782, 784, 786, 788, 790, 792, 794, 796, 798, 800, 802, 804, 806, 808, 810, 812, 814, 816, 818, 820, 822, 824, 826, 828, 830, 832, 834, 836, 838, 840, 842, 844, 846, 848, 850, 852, 854, 856, 858, 860, 862, 864, 866, 868, 870, 872, 874, 876, 878, 880, 882, 884, 886, 888, 890, 892, 894, 896, 898, 900, 902, 904, 906, 908, 910, 912, 914, 916, 918, 920, 922, 924, 926, 928, 930, 932, 934, 936, 938, 940, 942, 944, 946, 948, 950, 952, 954, 956, 958, 960, 962, 964, 966, 968, 970, 972, 974, 976, 978, 980, 982, 984, 986, 988, 990, 992, 994, 996, 998, 1000.

It is expected to have the 100 new members signed on by the end of the three days canvass. Any boy who is intending to join and has not been called on by Monday evening should try and get to the Y.M.C.A. not later than Tuesday morning before 10 p.m., so that full returns may be in by the allotted time.

If all accounts are true, the Y.M.C.A. cooks are already busy preparing for the banquet to be held on October 15th. It is expected that 150 boys will attend the feast. Any member of the Y.M.C.A. boys' department who has not already received his invitation is asked to call at the boys' secretary's office and get one.

The reception to Rev. H. S. Sneyd, assistant secretary of the Edmonton Y.M.C.A., who is leaving shortly for Yokohama, Japan, held at the association building last night, was a very enjoyable function and some 200 people took this opportunity of meeting Mr. Sneyd and bidding him farewell and God speed.

Arranged jointly by the board of the association and the residents of the dormitories, the reception took place in the main room of the building, while the audience overflowed into the reading room. Both rooms were nicely decorated with plants and a four-piece orchestra supplied delightful music.

During the evening short speeches were delivered and two presentations, one on behalf of the board and one on behalf of the dormitory men, were made to Mr. Sneyd. Dr. H. Sneyd, president of the board, presided, and in a short opening address referred appreciatively to Mr. Sneyd's six years' work with the Y.M.C.A., during which time he has assisted a vast number of young men in all situations of life by his help and encouragement. Dr. Smith mentioned particularly Mr. Sneyd's work in instructing coming Canadians and in this work, said Dr.

TWO WORDS.
The English language is so great. What learned thoughts it can express! What tender truths, yet, sad to state, Two words of it spoil happiness!

Small things indeed to shadow bliss. Too often these remarks are heard— "It would be perfect if— or this I liked it, but—ah, cruel word!" Wee crumpled rose leaves, but they are the pleasures that surround our way. The petty worries, things that jar, We magnify them every day.

Oh, "if" and "but," forget them now, Eliminate them from life's book; The sunlit shores will teach us how When once we raise our eyes and look!

The three "ifs" in the education of a debutante says "Life" are flummery, Haydine and Repose.
